

Winning Tactically, Mentally, and Ethically in a Gunfight Training Seminar

Instructor

Career police officer and author Tim Rupp understands both sides of a gunfight. Tim retired from the San Antonio (Texas) Police Department after 24 years and served eleven years as a reserve deputy in Bonneville County Idaho. Drawing from personal and professional experiences as a patrol officer, homicide detective, and police sergeant, he takes you through what you'll face in a gunfight and help prepare you to win.

Does physically surviving a gunfight mean you won? Not by a long shot. Many people survive gunfights. In fact, most people who are in a gunfight survive. But there is a difference between surviving and winning. Surviving means you continue to exist. Continuing to exist and winning are not the same.

Everyone who carries a gun for personal protection or the protection of others needs to understand what they will face before, during, and after a gunfight. This eight-hour seminar based on Winning a Gunfight helps prepare the modern warrior to win in the event they face a deadly foe.

Every student receives a copy of Winning a Gunfight, foreword by Lt. Col. Dave Grossman

Target Audience: Law Enforcement officers, military, use-of-force instructors, armed private security personnel, firearm/ tactics instructors, LE chaplains/clergy.
